About

Work the volume so that our building is a link rather than an individual object (symbol of remoteness and solitude)
Give to the park and the public spaces an lively urban face to increase the link between the public spaces and it's direct environment.
Maximize the transparency of the building so "what happens inside is visible outside" and create therefore a strong relationship between the public spaces and the public buidings.

In this context, the creche is an individual whose application and report to the public space are quite specific. The world of the child cannot be too visible and must preserve children from any potential aggression (physical, visual and sound). However a nursery should always participate to the public space while finding a form of privacy, this is often the first contact of a human being with the external world.

Our project proposes a creche partially buried in the ground of + - 250cm. This choice provides a private space in which the child feels safe and fully develop without interference his 5 senses.
