MSA: LECTURE IN PRAGUE

The current progressive architecture goes beyond the field of engineering and focuses in particular on the social, cultural and ecological fields. At least this is the approach developed by two Belgian offices that will give a lecture at the invitation of the Prague Circle on March 7 at 7:30 pm at the Centre for Architecture and Urban Planning (CAMP).

Benoit Moritz (MSA) will take visitors on a virtual walk through the urban landscape of Brussels and its metropolitan region. Benoit Moritz will present among others the Navez project, a social housing project in Schaerbeek that won the Emerging Architectural Award of the Mies van der Rohe Award 2017.

The second speaker is Gijs Van Vaerenbergh whose work is on the border between architecture and visual arts.
