Programme

New Medical, Emergency and Reanimation services

About

The URM project calls for new Medical, Emergency and Reanimation services, conceived as the operational heart of a vast site dedicated to the medical sciences (Purpan, Toulouse Hospital Centre). Conceived in connection with the new Pierre-Paul Riquet clinic or PPR, the building expresses, by its position privileged in entrance of the site, its own identity and benefits from a privileged position at the entrance to the compound. The architectural concept of the 'hospital garden' to which the project adheres is expressed by perspectives views through to by clear spaces, and patios sculpted by natural light. Nature is omnipresent and contributes to the sense of wellbeing for building occupants.
